Lala Lajpatrai was not merely a freedom fighter and social reformer, but also a noted author with several books to his credit. Lalaji was not only a lawyer but also a noted author. He urged Indians to join the Swadeshi Movement. Lala Lajpatrai was pro-Kesari and was known as the Punjab Kesari, who was himself a noted author with several books to his credit.

As Mahatma Gandhi pointed out, “Whoever Lala Lajpatrai was as long as he sun shines in India’s sky.” The Institute is collaborating with all enthusiasm and commitment to commemorate the Sesquicentennial Birth Centenary of Lala Lajpatrai.

During the function, Fadnavis stressed upon the fact that, with a population of 13.5 billion, India is the largest nation in the world, which will go on to become the largest youngest democracy by 2020.

Lala Lajpatrai was not merely a freedom fighter, but was a visionary who was a social reformer and understood the problems of the country. He believed that the fight for freedom was not only a fight against the British, but also a fight against the ignorance and superstition that was prevalent in the country. Lalaji’s birth is being celebrated, the theme of which is “One Nation, One People”. It is a need of the hour that India should become a part of its population, more than any other country of the world. The entire world will be getting old and they will need human power and the mind of young India will be channelized in the right direction.

Fadnavis also stressed on the students that only studying is not important but there is a need for quality in the 21st century. “One need not study in the border to fight for the country, but instead just ensure that he does his utmost to improve his intellect and be ready to fight for the country from behind the barricades,” he said.

Further, the Chief Minister of Maharashtra stressed on the students to join the Swadeshi Movement. He said, “We can rule the world if we direct the youth power of the country and we use it wisely.” He added, “If we want to bring a change, we need to improve our education system so that the youth decides to not allow any wrongdoer to rule the country.”
